A massive banking crisis occurred in the United States in 1933. In the two preceding years, a large number of banks had failed, and fear of losing savings had prompted many depositors to remove their funds from banks. Problems became so serious in the state of Michigan that Governor William A. Comstock was forced to declare a moratorium on all banking activities in the state on February 14, 1933. The panic in Michigan quickly spread to other states, and on March 6, President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared a banking moratorium throughout the United States, which left the entire country without banking services. Congress immediately met in a special session to solve the banking crisis and on March 9 passed the Emergency Banking Act of 1933 to assist financially healthy banks to reopen. By March 15, banks controlling 90 percent of the country's financial reserves were again open for business.

문 14. Which of the following best describes the organization of the passage?

- ① Contrasting the past and the current facts
- ② Opposing viewpoints of an issue
- ③ A problem and its solution
- ④ A theme followed by an example
- ⑤ A detailed definition of a terminology

문 15. Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- ① The Emergency Banking Act helped all banks to reopen.
- ② Ninety percent of the banks reopened by the middle of March.
- ③ Congress did not give any special priority to the banking situation.
- ④ Depositors stopped withdrawing their funds owing to the passed bill.
- ⑤ Ten percent of the country's money was in financially unhealthy banks.

Tulips are native to Central Asia. Well over 100 kinds are known to grow wild in the countries of Nepal, Iran, Afghanistan, and Turkey. European explorers and traders brought tulips from Turkey in the 1500's. Tulips require the type of cold winters typical in Europe in order to grow and bloom in spring. The climate of the Netherlands is especially well suited for growing tulips. By the 1600's, growing tulips was becoming a national hobby in the Netherlands. People collected many different varieties of tulips in their gardens. People invested in rare and beautiful tulips hoping to make a profit from other collectors. Some people in the Netherlands were actually investing their life savings in rare tulips. For a while in the 1600's, so many people in the Netherlands spent so much of their time and money on tulips that other work and industry suffered. The country might have gone bankrupt if the government had not regulated investments in tulips. Once the government stepped in, tulip production quickly became a profitable source of world trade for the Netherlands.

문 20. Which of the following is NOT correct?

- ① A cold winter is very important for tulips to have flowers in spring.
- ② Many kinds of tulips are found in Central Asian countries.
- ③ Some people in the Netherlands invested all their money in rare tulips.
- ④ The extreme interest in rare flowers once caused the industry to develop quickly.
- ⑤ After the governmental intervention, investing in tulips became very profitable in its international trade.
