It was developed by a French inventor. He was injured in an accident involving one of his dad's sharp tools at the age of 3. He became severely handicapped after that. Despite his disadvantage, he propelled himself to the top of his elementary class. He was admitted at 10 to a royal institution in Paris. There he was introduced to the raised-print system developed by the school's founder. Later he taught there. In order to make his instruction easier, he chose Charles Barbier's system of writing with points, evolving a much simpler one from that system. He was interested in music as well and for a time played the organ in a church in Paris. It consists of six raised points or dots used in 63 possible combinations. It is in use, in modified forms, for printing, writing, and musical notes.

Millions of Americans wake up to news about how unhealthy their air is, especially in the summer when air pollution is worst. Although many states have air that is much cleaner than it was twenty years ago, studies show over half of all Americans breathe polluted air.

The pollution problem is caused, in part, by expanding cities and suburbs. Many cities in the U.S. are overcrowded, forcing housing builders to start new communities on land outside city limits. This spread of housing developments and strip malls is called "urban sprawl." In major cities like Chicago, Washington, and New York, people who live in the suburban communities surrounding these cities must drive almost everywhere, including to their jobs. And as more people move to the suburbs and commute to the cities, the levels of traffic and pollution increase.

More cars on the streets and highways mean more traffic jams. And as cars sit in traffic, they burn gasoline and give off pollutants called hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides. When sunlight hits these compounds, they form ozone, a dangerous form of oxygen. Ozone creates smog and makes daily life difficult for people across the country.

19. The good news about the air in America is _____.
- ① less and less Americans drive to their jobs
  - ② the air in many of American states is much cleaner than it used to be
  - ③ the air is better in the winter than in the rest of the year
  - ④ the air quality in the United States is better than in other countries
  - ⑤ the levels of traffic and pollution have decreased as more people commute to the cities

20. 위 글의 내용과 가장 거리가 먼 것을 고르시오.
- ① Urban sprawl occurs because many American cities are overcrowded.
  - ② Many Americans are aware of their unhealthy air.
  - ③ People who live in the suburbs and commute to the cities are increasing.
  - ④ The air quality in the suburban areas is getting better.
  - ⑤ Ozone is created when sunlight hits the pollutants given off by cars.

Many years ago I was married (A)to/with a man who used to shout at me, "I do not give you the right to raise your voice to me, because you are a woman and I am a man." This was frustrating, because I knew it was unfair. But I also knew just what was going on. I ascribed his unfairness (B)for/to his having grown up in a country where few people thought women and men might have equal rights. Now I am going out with a man who is a partner and friend. We come (C)from/to similar backgrounds and share values and interests. It is a continual source of pleasure to talk to him. It is wonderful to have someone I can tell everything to, someone who understands.

21. 위 글의 내용과 가장 일치하는 것을 고르시오.
- ① The author has never met a person who understands her.
  - ② Her previous marriage failed because she couldn't adjust to a foreign country.
  - ③ She has no idea about why her previous marriage had to fail eventually.
  - ④ Her new partner is a better communicator with her than her previous husband.
  - ⑤ She is happy with her new partner despite not having many things in common.

The real heroes of the fight against drugs are the teenagers who resist the ghetto’s fast track—those who live at home, stay in school and juggle their studies with a low-paying job. The wonder is that there are so many of them. “Most of our youngsters are not involved in drug,” says the chief judge of one juvenile court in Michigan. “Most are not running around with guns. Most aren’t killing people. Most are doing very well—against great odds.” These are the youngsters who fit Jesse Jackson’s words: “You were born in the slum, but the slum wasn’t born in you.”

23. The author’s attitude toward ghetto teenagers who live at home, stay in school, and work is _____.

- ① hesitant                      ② admiring                      ③ neutral
- ④ indifferent                      ⑤ critical

The American Cancer Society issued new guidelines last week for mammograms, recommending that women in their 40s have the breast cancer screening performed annually. Old guidelines recommended mammograms every one to two years beginning at age 40, and every year beginning at age 50. A panel of experts made the new recommendation earlier this month, and the society’s board of directors approved it this weekend. Annual mammograms for younger women, the panel said, should save lives — possibly as many as 10,000 in the next five years. “The current average two-year interval between mammograms may be _____ for this age group and their faster-growing cancers,” said Dr. Susan Hayward, a surgeon from the University of Wisconsin Medical Center.
